International Financial Markets
Assoc. Prof. Dr. S. Meral Çakıcı

Sommersemester/summer semester 2020

This seminar will concentrate on topics in international finance such as international capital flows, capital controls, financial integration, financial liberalization and its effects on economic growth and macroeconomic volatility, efficient market hypothesis, financial regulation, and financial crises.

The topics listed above will be addressed in such a way that both the theoretical background and the empirical implications will be discussed. Participants are expected to prepare research proposals based on benchmark empirical and theoretical studies from the related literature. The selection of both the topics and the related literature aims to equip the seminar participants with extensive information on key issues related to international finance.
